DOCUMENTS IN THE DREYFUS CASE.

The bordereau, so often mentioned in the Dreyfus case, is a memorandum of notes on military subjects. It was addressed by some French officer or other person having access to French military secrets to Col. Schwartzkoppen, the military attache at the German Embersy in Paris. The French secret service discovered the bordereau in the German Embassy before it had been seen by Col. Schwartzkoppen. It was charged that Dreyfus wrote the bordereau, several handw iting experts saying that the writing was identical with that of the accused man. The bordereau,

September 1894, reads as follows: Sir: Though I have no news indicating that you desire to see me, nevertheless I am sending to you some interesting bits of information.

1. A note on the hydraulic brake of of this Great Discovery at E. S. the 120 and the way this piece behaved. Leadbeater & Sons' Drug Store. Only 2. A note on the covering troops (some modifications will be entailed by the new plan). 3. A note on a modification of artillery formations.

4. A note relative to M. dagascar.

5. The project of the firing manual for field artillery March 14, 1891

The last document is extremely difficult to procure, and I can only have it at my disposal during a very few days The Minister of War has sent a limi ed number of copies to the several corps, and these corps are responsible for its return, each officer in possession of one to return it after the manoeuvres. alf, then, you would like to take out of it whatever interests you and hold it afterward at my disposal I will take it, unless, indeed, you would like me to have it copied in extenso and then address to you the copy.

I am just off to the manoeuvres. Two years after Dreyfus had been sent to Devil's Island, Lieutenant-Colo nel Picquart, then at the head of the secret service department of the army, made discoveries which led bim to investigate the record of Count Esterhazy, a major in the French army. These investigations showed that Esterhazy's nandwriting was identical with that of the bordereau. A search of his house revealed note paper of the same peculiar kind on which the bordereau was written. Lieutenant-Colonel Ficquart communicated his suspicions to his su periors, and he was warned to k-ep silent. When he displayed an inclination to carry the matter further he was suddenly detached from his department and sent to Turis, where he was kept for a year. The fac's discovered by Lieut. Col Picquart had nowever, become known, and it became necessary to court-martial Esterhazy on the charge of writing the bordereau. He was acquitted on January 11, 1898, but it was made so un pleasant for him that he fled to England the following September. There be confessed in the office of a London

The petit bleu is the name of the postal card sent through the preumatic ubes of Paris. The petit bleu, however, has really no direct connection with the guilt or innocence of D.e, fus. One o' Colonel Pecquart assistants, in May 1896, brought him a number of paper which had been surreptitiously removed from a waste-paper basket in the office of the German Embassy. These papers contained the scraps of one of the familiar little blue postal cards Lieutenant-Colonel Picquart had the scraps pasted together and found that the card was addressed to Major Esterbazy. On the other side was this message: "I expect above all a more detailed statement than the one you recently gave me concerning the pending question. I ask you, consequently, to give it to me in writing, so I can come to some conclusion whether or not to continue my relatious to the house of B."

newspaper to being the author of the pordereau.

It was this card that caused Col. Pic quart to make a careful investigation of Esterhazy and his affairs. It was while examining speciments of the letter's writing that he was struck by its resemblance to that of the bordereau and subsequent investigations convinced him that Esterbazy and not Dreyfus was the traitor.

The secret dossier, which means a secret record of the case, includes some 400 papers or documents. It has been carefully guarded from the first, and never had been exhibited except to a comparatively few persons who have first made oaths not to reveal its contents. Reasons of state are given for the secrecy observed. The dossler figured prominently in the original conviction of Dreyfus, and was the chief factor in effecting the order of revision granted by the judges of the Court of Cassation. Many of the papers in the dossier are said to be forgeries, and it is believed some of them have been destroyed since the original presentation to prevent complications with foreign powers. The Court of Cassation, which revised the verdict of guilty reached by the first court-martial and ordered that Dreyfus be retired, is the highest ju-Dreyfus be retired, is the highest judiciary tribunal in France, the equivalent of the United States Supreme EXTRA SIFTED NEW CROP CANNED Ent of the United States Supreme J.
